CONSTIPATION

It is called the "Father of Diseases," because there is no medium through which disease so often attacks the system as by the absorption of poisonous gases in the retention of decayed and effete matter in the stomach and bowels. It is caused by a Torpid Liver, not enough bile being excreted from the blood to produce Nature's own cathartic, and is generally accompanied with such results as

Loss of Appetite, Sick Headache, Bad Breath, etc.

The treatment of Constipation does not consist merely in unloading the bowels. The medicine must not only act as a purgative, but it must also act as a tonic, to secure a regular habit of body without changing the diet or disturbing the system.

Give grace in full at measure, Let duty be a pleasure, And every gift that Fortune sends, accepted as a treasure.

Sunshine and shadows sharing, Rush for the other carning, And each, with tender heart and true, the other's burdens bearing.

So, by the Spirit guided, Life's duties all divided, May all its complex choices be by Love's sweet voice decided.

Through with bright hopes surer, Through all life's season surer, May each receive, for work well done, a home and life eternal.

CHIQUITO GOT A CHEW.

One of a party of four seated around a table in an up town cafe was a sedate looking gentleman, small in stature and faintly dressed. He was looking at the first thing that struck one in looking at him, yet there was a suggestion of vitality about him that made his careful attire seem out of place. One of the four addressed him familiarly as "Chiquito." The name struck another of the party, who then heard it for the first time, as a rather singular way of addressing the sedate if not solemn Mr. Smith, and he said something to that effect.

"Oh, that's what our friend here and all the other fellows used to call me in the old days when we were forty-niners in California," said Chiquito. "It is a sort of hybrid Spanish, you know, and means small; it fitted me exactly in those days. I'm not of a large pattern now, but in those days, when I was a youth under 20, I was not filled out and was very small, although I did carry the United States mail on horseback over a stretch of forty miles, nearly all of it a lonely mountain road."

"You must have met some queer people and strange incidents on those rides," one of the party remarked.

"No," Chiquito replied. "Mr. Smith. 'Many a time I went over the whole distance out and back without meeting a human being. Sometimes, however, I would come across a stray Indian and sometimes a small arsenal strapped about his waist and a pair of pistols in the holsters of his saddle. It was a rencontre with one of these gentlemen at the loneliest spot in the lonely mountain road that is almost the only vivid memory I have of those days in the long ago."

There was a general desire expressed to hear of that incident, and Mr. Smith continued:

"Well, you know, to be a forty-niner in California you had to use tobacco in all forms. I don't know that I was any compulsion about it, legal or moral, but everybody did, and young as I was I did what everybody else did. So it was my custom to go to the store just before starting on my journey and buy a large 'chunk,' as they called it out there, weighing about half a pound, which would last me out and back. But one morning, having a small stock of the weed left from my last trip, I forgot to get my usual supply before I started off with my mail. Queer mail that was, gentlemen, and rather expensive to the government. What the contractor got I never knew, but he paid me pretty well for carrying it, and I never had over half a dozen letters. Once in a while a stray newsboy would come along and I would buy a paper, but often it would not be for when I last got to his postoffice he would be dead."

"Well, that morning I had only half a dozen letters and no newspapers, and had just about ten miles on the road when I made the unpleasant discovery that I hadn't laid in my supply of tobacco. I reined up to consider the horrors of the situation. I was carrying the United States mail, which, small as it was, could not be trifled with by my going back to get the tobacco. Yet the idea of going without for two days was insupportable. Finally I made up my mind I would have to endure the hardship as best I could, and jogged on again. I had got about half way on my journey and was well up the narrow winding mountain when I saw a mounted man coming toward me. He was a mile or more away when I first saw him, but owing to the sharp turns in the road he seemed to be quite near, and I saw that he was a powerful fellow, and I knew he was well armed, for that was a custom of the country. I knew, too, that I could as safely ask him for his horse as for any of his tobacco, unless he happened to have a very large supply, which was not likely. But I made up my mind he had to contribute, so I got out my pistol, but held it so he couldn't see it. As our horses touched noses we stopped, which was nothing unusual, as two white men meeting always halted to exchange items of news, of which, as a general thing, neither had any.

"Mornin', stranger," said he, and I repeated the greeting. "Any varmints about?" he inquired, meaning Indians, and I assured him there were none. Then it came my turn to ask questions.

"Got any tobacco, stranger?"

"Yes, and I'm goin' to keep it."

"Guess I'll have to trouble you for a bit."

"Guess not." And in an instant I had him covered with my revolver. He took in the situation at once and was convinced. He drew out a long piece of the black stuff called 'nary,' which some of you gentlemen may have seen, but I hope have never tasted. He extended it toward me, and growled more gruffly than before.

"Take off what you want." But I was not to be caught in that way. Still keeping him covered with the pistol, I suggested that he had better cut that into two equal parts himself. Drawing a dirk knife of villainous appearance from his boot leg he cut the piece as I had suggested and extended one of them toward me.

"Just drop it in the road, stranger." He did it, put his knife back in his boot leg, gathered up his bridle reins and remarked: "Guess you have traveled some, youngster. Hope we'll meet again some time. Mornin'!"

"You guess right," I answered, as he started off.

A subscription paper is being circulated throughout the valley asking a bonus of $20,000 for the Sonoma Valley Railroad as an inducement for that company to widen its narrow gauge track to a standard gauge, run two trains daily from Sonoma and arrive at San Francisco inside of two hours, and have the same in running order by the 1st of June. Already $8,000 or $9,000 have been subscribed by citizens of this valley in sums of $1,000 each.

Newspapers are always valuable to material prosperity. They advertise the village, country or locality. They spread before the reader a map, on which may be traced character, design, progress. If a stranger calls at a hotel he first inquires for a village newspaper; if a friend comes from a distance, the very next thing after the family greeting, he asks you for a village or country newspaper, and you feel discomfited if you are unable to find a late copy, and confounded if you are compelled to say you do not take it.—Ex.

A large number of Eastern people have visited Sonoma the past week. Quite a large delegation arrived Sunday and were taken for a drive around the valley by real estate agent T. W. T. The day was a most lovely one and our bright skies, balmy breezes and green pastures no doubt made them long for a home in the beautiful and healthful valley which nestles at the feet of the picturesque mountains which surround it on three sides and is lavied by the waters of San Pablo Bay on the other.

A BIG LAW SUIT.

Action to Recover 6,400 Acres of Land in San Bernardino.

Robt. Howe of this place, through his attorney W. E. Bray, has commenced an action in the Superior Court of San Bernardino county to recover 6,400 acres of land situated in that county and valued at $300,000. The history of this case is an interesting one. Nineteen years ago the Eden Dale Fruit and Land Company was incorporated for the purpose of purchasing and selling lands in San Bernardino county. For a while the company did not flourish and in the latter part of 1869, D. N. Robinson, one of the original incorporators of the company, numbering in all ten persons, sold one-half of his interest to Robt. Howe for a few hundred dollars. This gave him an undivided one-half of one-tenth interest in the lands of the struggling company. Shortly after his purchase assessments commenced to be levied to buy more land and carry on the affairs of the company. These were promptly met by Mr. Howe until August, 1871, when without his consent and against his will the Eden Dale Company transferred all its interests to the Cucamonga Fruit and Land Company, and without issuing any stock to plaintiff in payment of his interest. Shortly after the transfer Mr. Howe took a run down to San Bernardino to have a look at the land owned by the company, and coming to the conclusion it wasn't worth shucks, he dismissed the matter from his mind for the time being and gave his attention to the many other business enterprises in which he was at that time engaged. Years went on apace and at last the boom struck San Bernardino and the lands of the Cucamonga Company became very valuable and are now worth in the neighborhood of $6,000,000, one-twentieth part of which is claimed by the plaintiff. The defendants to the suit number fifty-three and there are more to come. It is the opinion of leading attorneys of this State that Mr. Howe has a dead sure thing, and that he is bound to recover. The suit no doubt has created great consternation among the original incorporators, as years ago, when the members of the company met for the transaction of business the question of Howe's interest would often be brought up by some of the more long-headed members and motions made to get him to assign his share to the new company. But the more impetuous and bull-headed members, who were in a majority would exclaim: "Oh, d—n Howe, I move to adjourn." The motion would prevail, and so things went on until Mr. Howe and his interest in the company were finally forgotten.

Died from His Injuries.

Charles Neal, son of Mrs. Neal and brother of Mrs. Wm. Trudgen and Miss Belle Neal of this city, who was injured last week in a railroad accident near Tucson, Arizona Territory, had his left leg amputated last Monday, as the only hope of saving his life, but the shock was too great for his system and he died last Wednesday. Mr. Neal was an engineer on one of the Southern Pacific trains and while making his regular trip over the road on the 21st of last month the train was derailed. The engine turned completely over and the brave engineer, who stuck manfully to his post, was hurled violently to the ground. His left leg was broken below the knee and he was otherwise badly injured. Mrs. and Miss Neal were immediately summoned by telegraph to the bedside of the sufferer and hurriedly answered the summons and although constantly at his bedside and attending his every want and at last passed peacefully away. The remains will be taken to Euisun for interment.

The New Water Company.

Work on the tunnel of the Sonoma Valley Water Works Company on Terrace Hill is progressing very satisfactorily. The tunnel, which will be used as a reservoir for the storage of water, will be run in the hill about one hundred and fifty feet. This will keep the water ice cool throughout the summer months and enable the company to supply all the water necessary for domestic use and the irrigation of gardens the year round. It is the intention of the company to have the works in running order by the coming summer. George H. Maxwell has charge of the construction of the works and already something over $1,000 has been disbursed by him for labor alone.

New Towns Springing Up.

Several new town sites have been laid out and surveyed in this valley the past few months in anticipation of a demand for suburban residences by business and professional men of San Francisco on the completion of the Donahue railroad extension from Pacheco to the Sonoma Valley Railroad. Agua Caliente, one of these new towns, already boasts of a Postoffice, hotel, two saloons, livery stable, a general merchandising store, fish and meat market, blacksmith shop, a winery and swimming baths. North Glen Ellen is the name of another. The site of this town is laid off on Ten Oaks Vineyard, the property of Mrs. Kate F. Warfield, and is located in one of the most romantic spots in the valley. Verona is still another new town site which has lately been laid off on the Appleton and Burns places, a short distance from town. At the present time residence and villa sites in these new places can be purchased for one-tenth of what they will bring in the course of a year or so, as accessibility to the city and the salubrity of our climate are bound to make these new town sites popular with the city merchant who desires a residence in the country.

The Olive and the Prune.

In the past two years a great deal of attention has been paid by our farmers to tree planting and in a few years this valley will be about equally divided up in vineyards and orchards. A ride through the valley will show that young orchards are being set out by many of our vine-growers, who have at last realized that there is more money in a diversity of crops than there is in cultivating one particular kind of product, such as grapes, for instance. Realizing this Col. Geo. F. Hooper is engaged in planting out 2000 French prune trees on his farm near this city. Next season he will also plant 2000 olive trees in addition to those already growing on the place, which are among the oldest and most productive in the State. Several thousand olive trees have been planted within a radius of five miles of this city the past two years and, like Col. Hooper, many of our farmers are preparing to plant large numbers next season. In a few more years Sonoma Valley will be a heavy producer of all kinds of fruits and pure olive oil, which in time will become as famous as her celebrated wines and brandies.

That Iron Bridge.

Bids for the construction of an iron bridge across Sonoma Creek near this place were opened by the Board of Supervisors last Wednesday. There were six bids received, the highest being $3,890 and the lowest $2,350. The contract will be awarded at the March meeting of the Board, provided the necessary funds to pay for one-half the cost of construction is raised by the citizens of this city and deposited with the County Treasurer by the 5th of next month. Sufficient money has already been subscribed to insure the building of the bridge, but an additional expense in purchasing right of way through the Perkins place and grading and fencing a road through the same will require at least $1500 more. How to raise this additional sum is the question that is agitating the minds of the Sonoma Improvement Company.

A Practical Wine Exchange.

The General Committee of the Fruit-Growers' Association held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of M. M. Estes, California street. The following gentlemen were appointed to the General Committee to complete articles of association for a Wine Exchange in San Francisco. They will also prepare by-laws and report the same. They will procure subscriptions thereto and do all acts necessary to perfect the final arrangements of organizing a practical Wine Exchange in this city. The committee consists of: E. C. Prier, San Francisco; H. W. Crabb, Oakville, Napa county; I. De Turk, Santa Rosa; L. J. Rose, Los Angeles; A. J. Adams, Fresno; M. M. Estes, Napa; J. B. J. ## Personal and Social.

Sheriff Colgan and Mr. Henry Hamman of Santa Rosa were in town last Monday.

Jas. Ross of the firm of Rankin & Ross and W. L. Cook of Brooklyn, N. Y., were guests at the Occidental Hotel last Sunday.

His Business Booming. Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at E. Wegner's Drug Store as his giving away to his customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. His trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

The Union Hotel is first class in every respect.

A Cloverdale Tragedy.

The usually quiet town of Cloverdale was thoroughly aroused Saturday morning by the announcement of a fatal tragedy that was enacted at the railroad saloon, at the first tunnel of the Cloverdale and Ukiah Railroad, owned by R. Kuyland. John Biscaro, alias Joe Gonzales, a lover of San Francisco, arrived on the 7:30 P. M. train Saturday evening. He took a private conveyance to Squaw Rock and there, at another saloon, met his former mistress, Katie McNulty, alias Katie Smith. His greeting to her was a shot from a pistol, which he had ready. He then compelled her to go back with him to the railroad, where after considerable parleying, he fired three more shots, one taking effect in the girl's upper lip, wrist, and the third one entering her left side and taking a downward course, without fatal effect.

She was not prostrated by the shots, but ran into the adjoining bar-room, where she fell back on a bench. The would-be murderer followed her, and going up to her, asked if she was dying. She answered, "Yes I will die soon." Then turning, he put the revolver to his own forehead and said, "Now see me die." With that, he pulled the trigger with fatal effect. The ball lodged in his brain. The shooting occurred at about 10 A. M. and he died at 2:30 P. M.

A Coroner's jury was impaneled. On searching his body a card was found, on which he had written:

(Cloverdale, February 4.—I kill myself for this woman. My right name is John Biscaro.)

From the victim of his jealousy it is learned that the parents of the deceased own a ranch near Gonzales and are well-to-do. Before going to see her last evening he said to several parties that he would kill Katie. Her wounds are not serious, however. The jury rendered a verdict of suicide.—Chronicle.

How Small-Pox is Disseminated.

Thursday morning, says the Alta yesterday, a lady residing on Golden Gate avenue called at the Health Office to report a suspected case of concealment of small-pox. She stated that her washing was done at a Chinese laundry on Jones street, between Turk and Golden Gate avenues. It was her custom to call occasionally, and during one of her visits she saw "Joe," one of the sons of the proprietor, a bright little fellow, who spoke English well. "Joe" has been missing off to school. When she called Wednesday afternoon he made his appearance. The fresh scars on his face made her suspicious, and on closely questioning her fears verified. The Assistant Health Officer, acting at once on the information, proceeded to the laundry and found three young boys, who showed signs of having had the small-pox lately. It has not been decided what action the Board of Health will take in the matter.

COUNTY CULLINGS.

Fredrick Heyermann, who died in San Francisco last week, was the founder of Petaluma.

The graders on the Santa Rosa and Carquinez Railroad have completed the grading up to a point a short distance above the ranch of James Austin about four miles and a half east of Santa Rosa.

It is said that a force of 600 graders will be transferred from the new railroad being built in the San Joaquin Valley by the Southern Pacific Company to the Santa Rosa and Carquinez Company and the work on the latter road pushed through to speedy completion.
